Sapporo, the capital of Japan's northernmost island.

Nationwide surveys consistently rank

Sapporo as one of Japan's most desirable places to live. It's no surprise to the residents, who enjoy the advantages of big-city living with the majesty of a stunning natural environment. Hot spas, mountain hiking, camping, and after-work skiing are just as common as afternoon tea in a downtown cafe. Sapporo, the fifth largest city in Japan, boasts a safe environment with an even lower crime rate than the already low national average.

Sapporo is an ideal convention site, where you and your travelling companion can both enjoy its charms. Most of the city's accommodations and facilities are within walking distance and the warm-hearted, friendly Sapporites will always make you feel welcome.

Simply Delicious!

Unlike traditional Japanese cuisine, Sapporo dishes rely on their simplicity and natural flavours of the ingredients. Crab, scallops, and salmon are local specialties and restaurants specializing in these delicacies are common in the city.

Genghis Kahn, a lamb barbecue named after the Mongolian warrior, is unique to Hokkaido and especially popular at beer halls throughout the city, many with their own original sauces in which the lamb is either marinated or dipped after grilling.
